THE NIXONS JOURNEY

Eva and Heath Nixon entered the floor sanding industry over 15 years ago. The idea came from an Australian Supplier, who mentioned that “Floor sanders over here don’t do decks.” After recently selling a large, successful flooring service he had owned in Auckland, and looking for a new career move, Heath immediately recognised potential in a decking and sanding business that could do it all. Building on his existing knowledge of timber flooring, he took on the challenge of learning a new, niche skillset in sanding, decking and the restoration of decks and timber flooring. With machinery suitable for both trades, he was in the ideal position to move in a new direction and Nixons Deck Protect was born.

With his incredible wife and business partner Eva, Heath took this new venture North, bringing with him years of professional experience and partnerships with a network of suppliers throughout New Zealand.

Offering a niche service, that required specialised training immediately set the couple apart from competitors and before long Nixons was thriving, servicing clients throughout Kerikeri, Whangarei and the Far North. Heath’s dedication to perfection and particular approach to business quickly earned the couple a reputation as leading decking experts in their local area and before long they were inundated with enquiries from across the country.

Now, with business booming and interest in new and emerging territories throughout the country, the couple are ready to share their industry knowledge and entrepreneurial spirit with likeminded franchisees looking to own their very own lucrative deck restoration enterprise.
